

successfully gaining market share in 5G and holds a strong position as one of the leading technology companies in communications infrastructure equipment. Nokia has also indicated a stronger focus on cash conversion and increased shareholder returns going forward. The market does not seem to put much faith in this, however, and we believe the current valuation presents an attractive entry point. To fund this, we sold our remaining small position in the Norwegian oil and gas company Vår Energy. The company has not executed according to plan, and we now find more attractive opportunities in our other oil and gas related companies.

We also initiated a position in Eneti inc, a US offshore wind service vessel owner and operator. The industry is experiencing strong demand with a limited supply of new ships in the coming years which is pushing charter rates higher. Eneti has two new vessels coming into operation soon and is thus well positioned to benefit from this trend. In addition, it was recently announced that Eneti will merge into competitor Cadeler in an all-share takeover. This seems to be a strong deal for both companies, but the market has doubts as Eneti has continued to trade at a ca. 20% discount to the implied offer. We took advantage of this and increased our position further given the attractive risk reward.

It is important to remember that the strong performance in stocks over the past decade has been very unevenly distributed. Even after the correction last year, quality growth stocks generally continue to trade at an elevated valuation, while more capital-intensive industries trade at more reasonable prices. We think the odds of sustainably higher inflation and higher interest rates have risen significantly over the past 18 months. While sanctions against Russia have increased the short-term pressure on commodities, we also see long-term second order effects through a reversal of the globalisation we have become accustomed to. We are therefore comfortable with our current exposure towards companies that do well in an environment with higher inflation and interest rates – such as financial and energy-related companies. We also see several emerging market stocks trading at very attractive levels following ten years of underperformance. This is particularly compelling as several Asian economies have not yet fully benefited from the reopening in China.
